We cordially invite you to attend SLC ARTCC's Customer Forum 2012. The forum will bring together FAA and industry experts to conduct a series of presentations regarding effective communications and how the civilian and military goals are supported in tandem. In addition, breakout sessions will be scheduled to allow for individualized discussions.

Our goal is to provide a forum for the FAA and our industry partners to work together on the current and future needs of the National Airspace System.

Please share this invitation with colleagues in your organization who may benefit from attending the symposium. There is no fee for attending.

Along with your RSVP, please include names, positions, office phone numbers, and the physical work address of attendees from your organization. Also, include topics you would like to discuss and the names of those who would like to contribute a presentation and the subject they will address. Bob Davis will contact those presenting for itinerary scheduling. We look forward to seeing you at the forum!
