UPDATE: DETAILS REGARDING WATER LEAK AT AIRPORT

6:40 p.m. Update

The Mid-Concourse Tunnel section that was closed due to a water leak opened back up to passenger traffic shortly after 6 p.m. The ground water leak has been temporarily fixed and the airport is determining the cause of the leak to prevent future issues. The airport apologizes for any inconvenience this may have caused passengers.

5:18 p.m. Update:

At approx. 3:30 p.m. today, SLC International Airport Operations became aware of a ground water leak in the tunnel connecting concourses A and B. The area was cordoned off and passengers were directed to walk around the water. A utility corridor has been opened and passengers are being directed to walk in the corridor to avoid the water. Passengers needing special assistance are being bused between concourses at this time.

Further updates will be provided as available.
