UberX Begins Service at Salt Lake City International Airport

Salt Lake City – Transportation network company UberX is now legally operational and serving ground transportation customers at Salt Lake City International Airport. UberX joins Lyft as the two transportation network companies (TNCs) that have registered with the State of Utah and have been permitted by the Airport as part of a one-year pilot program. Designated pick-up areas for TNCs are located across from baggage claims of both terminals.

"Salt Lake City International is proud to be one of the few airports that provide legal operations for transportation network companies, as one of a wide array of options for our passengers," said Executive Director Maureen Riley. "The addition of UberX furthers our goal to provide the best customer service possible."

"We are thrilled to add Salt Lake City International to the growing list of airports that have embraced ridesharing services like UberX," said Eric Schroeder, Uber Utah General Manager. "Thanks to the leadership of the Salt Lake City Department of Airports and the Salt Lake City Airport Board, travelers from all over the world will now have the choice of requesting a safe, reliable and affordable ride with uberX when they land in the Beehive State."
